

How to produce 300-500kg/h corn flakes?

300-500kg/h corn flakes is a delicious snack made with corn, wheat flour and other grains as the main raw material. At the same time, with some trace elements and minerals added. And then, after extrusion, peeling, frying, and seasoning.

300-500kg/h corn flakes is a delicious snack made with corn, wheat flour and other grains as the main raw material. At the same time, with some trace elements and minerals added. And then, after extrusion, peeling, frying, and seasoning. At the same time, this snack is rich in carbohydrates and dietary fiber. So, they have been widely popular among consumers.

At the same time, it has a highly automated production method. And then, the whole machine is made of food-grade stainless steel. So, it is easy to install and maintain. At the same time, only one person can operate the entire production line. And then, it greatly reduces the production cost. At the same time, the equipment is of high quality and the manufacturer has a good reputation. So it has been widely popular at home and abroad.

It is a kind of snack food that is widely popular among consumers. Whether it is traveling or watching TV at home. It is a very good choice. At the same time, the snacks mainly use corn as the main raw material and mix some nutrients. During the processing, the damage to the grain starch can reduce to a minimum. At the same time, after a series of special processing. And then, the final product can have long-lasting crispness. The production line is automatic. At the same time, it has a high-precision control basis. So, it can easily complete the steps of mixing, extruding, cutting, and frying. At the same time, the final product is very good in terms of color, taste and nutrition. So this production line has become a highly sought after equipment in the snack food industry.